MIDDLE EAST COVERAGE STEPPED UP; CENSORSHIP PROBLEMS REPORTED

Major newspapers and wire services stepped up their coverage of the Middle East this week as the Israel-Egypt situation deteriorated.

Peter Webb, roving reporter in Berlin, Paris and London, moved into the area to help out fellow-UPers Eliav Simon in Tel Aviv and Walter Collins in Cairo.

INS regular in Rome, Michael Cinigo, filed copy this week from Israel. Alan

Will Yolen
FN NAME

YOLEN NAMED OPC "TOP KICK"

Will Yolen, who has been serving as chairman of the Program Committee's subcommittee on movies, was last week appointed Assistant to President Louis Lochner. His duties will be to take much of the detail work off the President and act as a first sergeant for the Club.

Yolen was managing editor of ABSIE (American Broadcasting System in Europe) during the second world war, a setup that was tied in with OWI and beamed news broadcasts to European countries still under Nazi domination.

At present he is magazine and motion picture consultant for Hill and Knowlton. He is a past president of the Publicity Club of New York.

As assistant to president Lochner, his primary duties will be those of coordinator, taking much of the load off the President. He will also sit in on committee meetings. McGregor is covering Cairo for the wire service.

Don Cook left the London bureau of the Herald Tribune late in the week to travel to the Middle East. He's reporting now from Tel Aviv.

Some of the correspondents on the scene report censorship of the news on both sides. It has been extremely difficult, for instance, to get pictures of the armaments shipments in the cotton-for-arms-deal between Egypt and Czecho-slovakia.

Most of the other newspapers and major networks were awaiting developments before enlarging their staffs.

The NY Times men in the area are Harry Gilroy in Israel and Kennett Love in Egypt. Bill Longgood continues in Egypt for the World-Telegram.

Wilson Hall is in Egypt and Al Rosenfeld in Israel for NBC.

Bill Downs, Rome bureau chief, moved into Israel for CBS, with Frank Kearns reporting on the other side of the tense border.

Ivan Jacobson is the resident representative in the Middle East for ABC.

CORRECTION

A paragraph on the report of the Annual Awards committee, delivered by Bruno Shaw at the semi-annual meeting of the OPC on Oct. 31, was garbled in part in last week's Bulletin. As the headline correctly indicated, the text should have stated that the committee had taken a stand against giving awards to organizations and would limit them to individuals in the future.

"DATELINE II" PLANS INCLUDE OPC PARTY

A buffet dinner at the OPC, beginof ning at 6 p.m., will precede the Producer's Showcase TV show, "Dateline II", Nov. 14. The charge is $2.50 per person.

After the broadcast an open house will be held for the cast.

NBC is producing "Dateline II" in a non-audience studio, but special arrangements have been made to seat approximately 50 members and their guests in the studio. Tickets have been set aside for resident members, who may pick them up on a first-come-first-served basis at the Reception Desk. Only one guest per member can be accomodated.

For those unable to obtain tickets to the production, two color television sets will be available at the OPC. The program entitled "The Right To Know" begins on NBC-TV at 8 p.m.

LOCHNER OFF TO WEST COAST

OPC President Louis Lochner will leave for the Pacific Coast immediately following the television show on Monday to deliver a series of lectures in California.

The commitment was made before he became OPC President. He will return about December 6 and during his absence, the OPC will be headed by OPC First Vice President Kathryn Cravens.

ADDITION TO LIBRARY

Two pages of Lowell Thomas' script for the first broadcast from the Overseas Press Club, along with pictures commemorating the affair, have been placed in the Memorial Library.

OPC'ERS ASKED FOR PULITZER NOMINATIONS

Members of the Overseas Press Club are invited to submit nominations for the Pulitzer Prizes in Journalism for 1956.

The thirty-ninth annual award of the journalism prizes will be made by the trustees of Columbia University early in next year for journalistic achievements in 1955. The deadline for submitting nominations is Feb. 1, 1956. Nominating blanks are available at the Club's reception desk.

Pulitzer Prizes in Journalism are awarded as follows: 1) for disinterested and meritorious public service by a newspaper. 2) For a distinguished example of local reporting in a newspaper under pressure of edition time. 3) For local reporting in which edition-time pressure is not a factor. 4) For distinguished national reporting. 5) For distinguished international reporting. 6) For distinguished editorial writing. 7) For distinguished example of a cartoonist's work. 8) For an outstanding example of news photography.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

In the Oct. 29 Bulletin Clyde E. Brown of Fairchild Publications, supported by Russell Anderson of McGraw-Hill, protested the proposed amendment to Section I of the Constitution. If adopted, it would have restricted membership in the OPC to correspondents of publications "of general circulation." It was rejected at the semi-annual membership meeting.

Few would dispute "the stature and high standard of publishing" mentioned in the communication, with special reference to the two enterprises represented. But does this truly extend to the entire "business and trade press"? Where, below this admittedly high level, does one draw a line that permits a challenge to the eligibility of (to pose a hypothetical example) the political affairs editor of the Millinery Journal? This is not facetious. Approximately parallel claims as to qualifications have been submitted, and will continue to be.

The committee on revision has been groping for a formula that in this stage of OPC growing pains, might stabilize the membership as nearly as possible,

CASTILLO ARMAS HONORED AT CLUBHOUSE RECEPTIONS

The Overseas Press Club played host on Thursday, Nov. 3, to Guatemalan President Carlos Castillo Armas, his wife Dona Odilia, and distinguished representatives of the Guatemalan Government, together with a group of Guatemalian newsmen. Dona Odilia was the guest of honor at a late afternoon reception in the Club given by the NY Newspaper-women's Club while the OPC itself was playing host to the visiting newsmen.

Castillo Armas arrived during both receptions and recorded a brief broadcast for the Voice of America. He also made an appearance at both receptions.

Accompanying the President were his country's foreign minister, Dr. Domingo Gorcalea; Economic and Labor Minister Jorge Aranales, Presidential Secretary Jorge Skinner Klee, U.N. Ambassador Emilio Aranales, Chief of Protocol Francisco Linares, and Guatemalan Ambassador in Washington Luis Cruz Salazar.

OPC Vice President Kathryn Cravens introduced Dona Odilia to the reception.

"GLAMOUR NIGHT" NOV. 14 FEATURES CARL BAKAL, MODELS

The OPC Open House on Tuesday, Nov. 14, will honor Carl Bakal, a Club member and noted photographer on the publication of his new book, "How to Shoot for Glamour." In the Stairway Gallery will be an exhibit of illustrations from his book. Top models will be present for a "Glamour Night", and members are invited to bring their cameras. Copies of "How to Shoot for Glamour" will be awarded as door prizes. Cocktails 6 to 7:30.

on a solid professional basis. The answer is not simple. Happily, John Luter and his committee are most receptive to suggestions. Existing regulations undeniably are inclusive, rather than exclusive. Establishment of a sound balance constitutes a difficult assignment. It needs time, and the kind of careful consideration it is getting.
